

About Basmati

Nepal is a very Beautiful country, where the highest peak in the world (Sagarmatha) lies, birth place of Siddhartha Gautam who later became Lord Buddha and the land of the famous and mightily brave Ghurkhas.

Basmati is a type of rice grown in the Himalayas of Nepal. It is a long grain rice that is characterized by a light nutty flavours, and becomes longer still when cooked. It can be either white or brown, with the white variety having more flavour when cooked. The rice is lighter and more fluffy, and does not stick together.

We warmly welcome you to Basmati for traditional Nepalese and Indian Cuisine. An Experience that you will never forget.

We offer fresh and quality Nepalese and Indian Cuisine, which is prepared by experienced and specialist Chefs and served by friendly staff recruited directly from Nepal.

All of the dishes we serve, are made using finest ingredients, herbs and traditional spices, without using any artificial colour and flavour.
